

Yeats Annual

Notes for Contributors

Yeats Annual welcomes submission of articles, notes, and editions of texts. Descriptions of research collections of interest to Yeats scholars and bibliographical information are also welcome, especially for our 'Notes and Documents' sections, and for occasional series such as 'Mastering What is Most Abstract': A Forum on A Vision'.

Our two-stage submission process allows referees to comment upon submissions. The initial contribution (3 copies or as an attached file) should be in the Editor's hands at least 18 months before publication of the issue for which it is intended. (We aim for publication in January of each year.) Under normal circumstances we will reach a decision on a submission as soon as possible. Please supply your contribution in a form in which it can be refereed anonymously. If you refer to work you have previously published, please do so in the third person. Referees' comments will be communicated to contributors who are asked to bear the recommendations in mind while making final adjustments to their texts.

Your article as accepted for publication will need to be submitted in triplicate (including the top copy) and as an email attachment or CD-Rom. Please use a PC-based program, for copy-editing and page-making in-house for CRC submission. If you use an Apple Macintosh program it will be necessary to ensure that your electronic version will be PC compatible before sending it. We advise you to keep a back-up of your contribution and, if using a CD-Rom, to send your paper and electronic submission in two separate packets. The final typescript and CD must be in our hands at least a year before publication.

All quotations must be checked by authors (1) before final submission and (2) at proof stage. In each case, they should be checked against original sources, i.e. do not check the proofs merely against your typescript. In all cases, including from MSS, quote verbatim using original orthography and conventions, and do not 'silently emend' sources.

English conventions of orthography should be followed in your own text, and will be silently supplied at copy-editing stage. Opening paragraphs and those immediately opening numbered or titled sub-sections should not be indented. All other paragraphs should be indented two spaces without a blank line. Use single inverted commas outside double. Inset quotations should be marked off with one blank line between the quotation and preceding and succeeding text, and should be inset two spaces on both right and left margins.

Yeats Annual does not use 'Harvard' style (ie author/date in-text citations), and we do not print bibliographies with articles. Instead, please use Chicago or MHRA layout in addition to the further instructions offered below. Unless you are using NotaBene for Windows, please place your footnotes as endnotes.

Citations of the works included on the list of 'Abbreviations' (enclosed is latest list, from Yeats Annual 14) should be placed not in endnotes but in your text within parentheses, usually at the end of a sentence and before the full point. The citation form is '(Au 181)' — note italics for abbreviation, no comma, no 'p.' or 'pp.' However, if the citation follows an inset quotation in verse or prose, the brackets should come two full spaces after the punctuation at the end of the inset passage, and should have no further punctuation after the closing bracket, as follows:—

he is never the bundle of accident and incoherence that sits down to breakfast; he has been reborn as an idea, something intended, complete. (E&I 509)

Unless you have a particular reason for citing a particular edition, please quote Yeats's poems and plays from the two Variorum Editions using the corrected printings cited below. Prose works should be cited from Collected Edition of the Works if available, but there are many occasions on which you will wish to offer double citations, using older texts as well as these.

If you cite any other primary or secondary work frequently, please supply an appropriate abbreviation or other form of second reference in your first footnote, and place all further citations in your text. We would prefer a keyword or acronym of the title to be used. Such abbreviations should not be in italics. Please do not use the author's name, which can have uncontrollable associations (remember Matthew Arnold's 'Higginbotham, Stiggins, and Bugg').

A limited number of illustrations can be included in any given issue of the journal. If you would like to have your essay illustrated, please let us know as early as possible, and please supply at once reproductions and permissions letters if necessary. Black and White glossy photographs of approximately 10" x 8" are preferred.

You will receive page proofs of your essay. Please check them as carefully as possible and answer the queries indicated on the proofs. Substantive changes, however, cannot be accepted at page-proof stage.

Do not refer to individuals by their first names alone in your text viz. 'Maud', 'George', 'Olivia', 'Florence', 'Willie', 'Ezra' etc.

Contributors of essays will receive a complimentary copy, but Palgrave are unable to provide complimentary copies to reviewers. Offprints are, I regret, not available, but all contributors are able to buy copies at authors' discount.

Although Palgrave will absorb reasonable permission fees, we ask your co-operation in limiting the amount of quotation as far as possible. In particular, try to avoid quoting the full text of any poem not by W B Yeats, and especially be sure to keep strictly within the 'fair dealing' guidelines. For Poetry permission is required if you quote more than one-quarter of a single poem, or 25 lines or more from any number of poems. For Prose, permission is required if you quote more than 400 words from a single passage, or 500 or more words from a single volume.

When submitting your final typescript for publication, please include a list of any quotations which exceed the above guidelines, and your letters of permission from appropriate estates or agents. The quotation of unpublished material by Yeats requires the permission of the Yeats Estate. Requests should be addressed to Linda Shaughnessy, A. P. Watt Ltd., 20 John Street, London, WC1N 2DR. Quotations from unpublished prose currently require the approval of Professor Roy Foster, FBA, Carroll Professor of Irish History, Hertford College, Oxford OX1 3BW and those from unpublished letters the approval of Professor J. S. Kelly, St John's College, Oxford, OX1 3JP on behalf of the Oxford University Press. Please send a copy of your essay to the above (as appropriate) when seeking permission to quote, and please mark the quoted passages clearly. Unpublished materials by other authors and artists should also be accompanied by full clearance from literary executors and estates, owners of copyright holders. Certain libraries, such as the Berg Collection of the New York Public Library, also require that you obtain their permission before quoting from materials in their possession. It would be helpful if copies of your letters of authorization could be sent to me as they become available, and, at the latest, with final submission of your article. Please obtain permission from the owner of the original item, and send a copy of the letter of authorization to the Editor.

Please also obtain permission where necessary from museums, libraries or publishers. I endeavour to ensure that Palgrave grants contributors the copyright in their individual articles. You should, therefore, be free to republish your article at an agreed date subsequent to the publication of Yeats Annual.
